RW

KEYNOTE SPEAKER · EXECUTIVE COACH · LIEUTENANT COLONEL, U.S. ARMY

Speaker Bios & Stage Introduction

Approved for programs, websites, event apps, and press releases

SHORT BIO (ABOUT 50 WORDS)

Lieutenant Colonel RaShaun D. Warren is a keynote speaker, executive coach, and Founder & CEO of RDW Executive Edge and See I Am Me™. A former NCAA Division I scholarship athlete at Kent State University, he brings more than 20 years of U.S. Army leadership to help teams move from compliance to ownership.

MEDIUM BIO (ABOUT 100 WORDS)

Lieutenant Colonel RaShaun D. Warren is a keynote speaker, executive coach, and Founder & CEO of RDW Executive Edge and See I Am Me™. Over more than two decades in the U.S. Army, he served as Deputy Commander of the 38th Air Defense Artillery Brigade in Japan, Air and Missile Defense Chief at III Armored Corps, and Professor of Military Science at the University of North Alabama. A former NCAA Division I scholarship basketball player at Kent State University, RaShaun turns command, classroom, and courtside lessons into keynotes that move teams from compliance to ownership, and from motivation to discipline.

LONG BIO (ABOUT 300 WORDS)

Lieutenant Colonel RaShaun D. Warren is an executive leader, educator, strategist, and coach with more than two decades of experience developing leaders, building resilient teams, and guiding organizations through complex change. He is the Founder & CEO of RDW Executive Edge and See I Am Me™, and the creator and co-host of The See I Am Me Podcast.

In the U.S. Army, RaShaun served as Deputy Commander of the 38th Air Defense Artillery Brigade in Zama, Japan, supporting Pacific theater air and missile defense; as Air and Missile Defense Chief and Chief of Tactical Operations at III Armored Corps at Fort Cavazos, Texas, spanning four divisions and nine brigade-level units; as Senior Instructor and Writer for the Air Defense Artillery Captains Career Course; and as Professor of Military Science at the University of North Alabama, where he led the Army ROTC Lion Battalion from 2020 to 2023. His service has taken him across the United States, Japan, Iraq, South Korea, Bahrain, and Kuwait.

A graduate of Trimble Technical High School in Fort Worth and a McDonald's All American nominee, RaShaun played NCAA Division I basketball on scholarship at Kent State University, where he earned his B.A. He holds an M.A. in Organizational Leadership from Webster University, is resident qualified from the Command and General Staff College, is a certified Army instructor, and has completed ICF-aligned coach training toward the ICF ACC credential.

His recognitions include the Key to the City of Florence, Alabama; Citizen of the Year from the University of North Alabama Police Department; and the Fred Johnson Educator Award from Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. Today he speaks to corporate teams, educators, courts and social systems, military organizations, universities, and youth programs. He is based in Fort Worth, Texas.

STAGE INTRODUCTION (ABOUT 60 SECONDS)

Please read as written. Pronunciation: RaShaun = ruh-SHAWN.

Good [morning/afternoon/evening], everyone.

Our next speaker grew up in Fort Worth, played NCAA Division I basketball on scholarship at Kent State University, and went on to more than twenty years of leadership in the United States Army. He served as Deputy Commander of an Air Defense Artillery Brigade in Japan, led air and missile defense for III Armored Corps across four divisions, and as Professor of Military Science at the University of North Alabama, trained the next generation of Army officers.

He holds the Key to the City of Florence, Alabama, and today he is the Founder and CEO of RDW Executive Edge and See I Am Me, where he coaches executives and helps teams move from compliance to ownership. As he likes to say: if you go through life being casual, you will wind up a casualty.

Please join me in welcoming Lieutenant Colonel RaShaun D. Warren.

Short version (20 seconds)

Our speaker is a U.S. Army Lieutenant Colonel with more than twenty years of leadership, a former Division I athlete, and the Founder and CEO of RDW Executive Edge. Please welcome Lieutenant Colonel RaShaun D. Warren.

NOTES FOR THE HOST

- Please don't add details beyond this script unless discussed with RaShaun.
- Begin applause as RaShaun walks to the stage.

"If you go through life being casual, you will wind up a casualty."

BOOK RASHAUN D. WARREN

Give your audience a message they will act on.

info@rashaunwarren.com · (808) 208-3654 · rashaunwarren.com · linkedin.com/in/rashaunwarren · Fort Worth, Texas